RightWisconsin Releases “The Dumbest Dozen” of 2018

It was the worst of times, it was the dumbest of times. Wisconsin politics can get pretty stupid, and politicians and voters in Wisconsin just seemed determined to prove how stupid they could be in 2018.

RightWisconsin took a look back at 2018 and found the “Dumbest Dozen,” the twelve dumbest events in Wisconsin politics over the last year.

“It was a tough job, but we winnowed it down to just twelve,” said RightWisconsin Editor James Wigderson. “We’re sure we missed some pretty stupid things Wisconsin politicians and voters did in 2018, but this list is definitely the worst.”

Wigderson said readers will probably have a few nominations of their own.

“After all, there was no way anyone could keep track of all the stupidity in 2018,” Wigderson said.

Not making the cut: the Shorewood school district canceling the production of To Kill a Mockingbird, Charisse Daniels faking her nomination papers, and the debut of Milwaukee’s streetcar.

“Those were all great examples of stupidity, but that just goes to show how stupid the political culture got in Wisconsin,” Wigderson said. “Unfortunately, 2019 doesn’t promise to be any better.”
