

For Immediate Release

January 3, 2019

Contact: James Wigderson
Editor, RightWisconsin
JamesWigderson@RightWisconsin.com
262-422-7763

RightWisconsin pundits predict the events that will Shape 2019, from the Budget to Baseball.

Waukesha - Once again RightWisconsin asked some of our favorite contributors to gaze into their crystal balls to predict what will happen in 2019. From crime to transportation funding, from the Packers to legalized pot, from Tony Evers to Donald Trump, RightWisconsin's prognosticating panel peered into the future and opined on what they saw.

"Sometimes with their tongues firmly planted in their cheeks, our panelists provided a little insight into what Wisconsinites can expect in 2019," RightWisconsin Editor James Wigderson said. "How it will all actually turn out, who knows?"

Nearly every one of our pundits predicted the state budget will be late this year. However, nearly all of them agree that a deal will be struck on transportation funding.

"What was interesting to me was how many of our panelists believe that a deal can be reached, even if it won't be on time," Wigderson said. "The only questions are what Evers will get out of the compromise and how much gas taxes will go up."

The article is online at RightWisconsin, "RIGHTWISCONSIN PUNDITS' PREDICTIONS FOR 2019."

Participating in this year's panel of prognosticators:

Steve Spignola, a former police detective, author and television cold case investigator;

Rick Esenberg, president of the Wisconsin Institute for Law & Liberty;

John Schulze, the Director of Legal and Government Affairs for Associated Builders and Contractors of Wisconsin;

Steve Prestegard, the author of The Presteblog;

George Mitchell, a former journalist, a school choice advocate, and a public policy consultant;

Brian Fraley, a former managing editor of Right Wisconsin, the President of Edge Messaging, and a political consultant;

Dan Adams, the Democrat on the panel and a defense attorney,

Eric Searing, the Director of External Relations for the Wisconsin Institute for Law & Liberty;

Owen Robinson, West Bend columnist and blogger at Boots & Sabers;

Kevin Binversie, a freelance writer and a former Web Editor at RightWisconsin;

Rohn Bishop, the Chairman at Republican Party of Fond du Lac County;

James Wigderson, the editor of RightWisconsin.

###