Maclver Institute announces the hiring of Matt Kittle

[Madison, Wisc...] The John K. Maclver Institute for Public Policy announced today that Investigative Reporter Matt Kittle is joining Maclver, a free market think tank based in Madison, Wisconsin.

Kittle was most recently employed as the Bureau Chief and Managing Editor of Wisconsin Watchdog.

“We are excited to have Matt join our team. Matt's work to expose government waste is unparalleled and his ability to give voice to those wronged by the government will be a tremendous asset for Maclver going forward,” said Maclver Institute President Brett Healy.

Matt Kittle is a 25-year veteran of print, broadcast and online media. An award-winning journalist, Kittle has covered Wisconsin politics and policy for the past six years. His Pulitzer Prize-nominated series, "Wisconsin's Secret War," chronicled the Badger State's infamous John Doe investigation and was the inspiration behind a 2014 documentary on Glenn Beck's TheBlaze.

Kittle is a frequent fill-in host on the Vicki McKenna Show, the Jay Weber Show, and the Mark Belling Show.
