

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

June 14, 2018

Contact: Austin Altenburg

media@scottwalker.com

ICYMI: Companies Continue to Create Jobs for Hard-Working Families Under Gov. Walker's Reforms

[Madison, Wis.] – With Gov. Walker leading Wisconsin's comeback, business investment is returning to the state, the economy is growing and jobs are being created for hard-working Wisconsin families along the way.

In just another of the many ways the governor's policies are having a positive impact across the state, Green Bay Packaging announced on Tuesday that they are planning to invest in Wisconsin – the largest economic development project in Brown County's history – that will create 200 jobs at an average salary of $59,600. With more people working than ever before and record-low unemployment, Wisconsin is working under Gov. Walker's leadership – now, the governor's bold reforms are spurring additional economic growth to keep Wisconsin moving forward.

Read more from the Daily Reporter here or find excerpts below:

Green Bay Packaging's $500M paper mill to create 1K construction jobs

Daily Reporter

By Nate Beck

Green Bay Packaging announced plans on Tuesday for a $500 million overhaul of its paper mill in Green Bay, laying the groundwork for what will amount to the largest business-development project ever in Brown County.

The $583 million project will result in the first paper mill to be built in the United States in 20 years. It's expected to create about 1,000 construction jobs and 1.5 million man-hours of work over the course of three years. The company plans to build the new mill next to its existing one and move in after construction is completed in 2021. The general contractor Miron Construction is expected to break ground on the project in September. ...

When the new plant is opened, 200 jobs will be created "throughout the state," according to a news release. ...

“Green Bay Packaging has been an integral part of Wisconsin’s manufacturing legacy for generations, and we are excited to see their ongoing commitment to Wisconsin through this major expansion,” said Governor Scott Walker in a news release. “The company’s investment in this new facility and new equipment will not only benefit the Green Bay region, but will strengthen our state’s papermaking industry.”

###

Paid for by Friends of Scott Walker