Statement on US Supreme Court's Citizenship Question Decision

Milwaukee -- The Wisconsin Counts 2020 coalition is pleased with the US Supreme Court's decision against the citizenship question on the 2020 Census. The inclusion of such a question would've been detrimental to the Census.

Though their decision is a complicated one and may prove to be a limited remand, it is affirming to know that SCOTUS recognizes the dangers a citizenship question poses to our democracy. We will continue our work to ensure Wisconsin's maximum participation and inclusion in the 2020 Census — particularly among hard-to-count communities like renters, people of color, low-income households, immigrants, and young children.
