In The News: Scott Walker Outlines New Agenda to Keep Wisconsin Working for Generations to Come

[Madison, Wis.] – Scott Walker’s campaign released a new statewide TV ad Wednesday morning introducing his agenda to keep Wisconsin working for generations to come.

Making campaign stops in Onalaska, Eau Claire, Wausau, Green Bay and Waukesha the day after the primary election, Scott Walker discussed more of his plans for Wisconsin’s future to benefit our state’s seniors, families and millennials. His proposals include helping seniors stay in their homes, making child care affordable for working families, investing in youth apprenticeship programs beginning in 7th and 8th grades, and reducing student loan debt for college graduates who work and live in Wisconsin. Our state’s comeback is on a roll under Scott Walker’s leadership, and now the governor is pushing reforms that will keep Wisconsin working for generations to come.

Check out what’s in the news:

From WISC-TV Channel 3000: “Walker unveiled outlines of proposals and a new ad on Wednesday morning, as well as at campaign stops in Onalaska, Eau Claire, Wausau, Green Bay and Waukesha the day after the primary. Walker is seeking a third term.”

From the Washington Examiner: “The Walker campaign also launched its first ad of the general election right away on Wednesday morning. ‘Wisconsin’s on a roll,’ Walker begins in the ad. ‘Lower taxes. More money in education. Record-low unemployment. And we’re just getting started.’”

From the Leader-Telegram: “The two-term Republican governor told about 50 supporters gathered Wednesday morning at J&D Manufacturing that he planned to run on his record – Wisconsin’s unemployment rate being at an all-time low, the number of people in the state’s workforce being at an all-time high and K-12 education funding being at a record high in terms of actual dollars – and also proposed several new tax incentives to attempt to ease the state’s worker shortage.”

From WEAU 13 News: “During a stop in Eau Claire, Governor Walker, joined by Lieutenant Governor Rebecca Kleefisch, announcing a series of proposals for tax credits he says will benefit seniors, families, and college grads. 'Connect students to careers, things like moving up apprenticeships to 7th and 8th grade students,' said Walker. He says he's focused on keeping graduates in Wisconsin by helping with student loan debt for student graduates who choose to stay and work in the state. He also has plans to help Wisconsin seniors. 'Make sure our seniors or retirees can afford to stay in their homes and hopefully in turn kind of mentor and encourage those entering the work force,' he said. Walker also announced a plan to provide a tax credit to families for the cost of child care."
