In The News: Scott Walker Wins Week One – Outlines Plan to Keep Wisconsin Working For Generations to Come

[Madison, Wis.] – Scott Walker is ready to win in November, and last week the governor’s aggressive campaign strategy was on full display after launching a new statewide TV ad, rolling out his agenda to keep Wisconsin working for generations to come, and going on a statewide tour.

On Wednesday, Scott Walker and Rebecca Kleefisch barnstormed the state – making stops in Onalaska, Eau Claire, Wausau, Green Bay and Waukesha. On top of that, the Walker campaign released a new TV ad to lay out the governor’s plan for the next four years – which includes plans to connect students to careers, keep graduates in Wisconsin, help seniors afford to stay in their homes, and support working families. Wisconsin is on a roll under Scott Walker’s leadership, and the governor will continue this aggressive strategy to earn every vote and share his plans to keep Wisconsin working for generations to come.

Check out what’s in the news:

From WQOW: “Within the next four years, Governor Scott Walker said he has a plan to keep Wisconsin working for generations to come, and the proposals of that plan are laid out in a new TV ad.”

From the La Crosse Tribune: “Gov. Scott Walker Wednesday proposed expanding youth apprenticeships to middle school students and providing tax credits for recent college graduates, senior citizens and child care during a La Crosse County campaign stop.”

From the Wisconsin State Journal: “‘The choice is simple,’ Walker told supporters in Waukesha on primary night. ‘Do we take a giant step backwards and watch more of our graduates flee the state to pursue their careers or do we continue to move forward as we keep Wisconsin working for generations to come.’”

From WISN: “The first was published before the stroke of midnight. The Wisconsin Republican Party

spot, part of a $500,000 buy, accuses Evers of not protecting the safety of children because he didn't revoke the license of a teacher caught viewing pornographic material at school.”
