Protect and grow your ideas at Inventors' Day at UW-River Falls

September 24, 2018 – Inventors and dreamers, community entrepreneurs, small business owners and students and faculty alike are welcome to learn how innovation changes lives during Inventors' Day at the University of Wisconsin-River Falls on Thursday, Sept. 27.

Offered in partnership by UWRF and the Elijah J. McCoy Midwest Regional United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO), the program will be held in the Falcon's Nest of the University Center, 501 Wild Rose Ave.

A representative from USPTO will share insight on how innovation plays a key role in our society.

There is no fee to attend, but space is limited. For more information and to register for this public program, visit <https://sept2018uwriverfalls.eventbrite.com>.
