Janet Bewley announces new TV and digital ad campaign highlighting record of delivering for Northern Wisconsin

Mason, WI - Today, Janet Bewley announced a new TV and digital ad campaign for her re-election effort. The ad highlights Janet's record of delivering for Northern Wisconsin. It will air across Wisconsin's 25th Senate District.

In the State Senate, Janet Bewley has fought to expand access to health care, fully-fund public schools, and invest in skills training. She has also fought to keep resources here in Northern Wisconsin, voting for a $50 million rural economic development fund and championing the "Better City Superior" project.

"I have traveled thousands of miles to fight for Northern Wisconsin families," said Janet Bewley. "When it comes to Northern Wisconsin, we know that economic development goes hand in hand with community development. That's why I have fought to protect access to health care - including coverage for pre-existing conditions - and invest in each of the 40 school districts I have the privilege to represent.

"I am proud of my record of fighting for Northern Wisconsin and look forward to continuing to fight for you in the state senate," concluded Bewley.
