Mayor Motiff Appointed to League of Wisconsin Municipalities Board

Washburn Mayor Mary Motiff was appointed to the League of Wisconsin Municipalities Board of Directors bringing her experience in local government and as Bayfield County Tourism Director to the statewide governing body. The League serves Wisconsin's cities and villages, providing advocacy, training and legal services.

"I'm honored to be appointed to the board of this well-respected organization," said Mayor Motiff. "I look forward to making sure that small cities like Washburn are considered when advocating for local government at the state level."

League President and Waunakee Village Administrator Todd Schmidt is tremendously pleased that Mayor Motiff accepted the appointment. According to Schmidt, "The League Board is made up of a diverse, talented and committed group of local leaders. With this appointment we have added yet another skilled municipal official who is ready and willing to advocate for those who live in our State's great cities and villages."

Motiff joins peers from across the state on the 16-member League Board whose members represent cities and villages both large and small. The League is a membership organization. Board members are drawn from the 189 cities and 405 villages who belong to the League. The League's governing body will be making decisions at a crucial time in the League's 122-year history as the organization helps support Wisconsin's cities and villages through the pandemic and looks to the future.

Mayor Motiff holds a Bachelor's degree in Zoology and Environmental Studies from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and is grateful to be able to combine her love of nature with her work in tourism and as Mayor of Washburn, the nation's first Eco-municipality.
